1902-
Psychiatre

Psychiatre formé à Genève, Poznan, Vienne, Paris, Boston (Harvard), New York et Chicago, le docteur Kazimierz Dabrowski a pratiqué, cherché et professé dans son pays natal, la Pologne, de 1931 à son émigration au Canada en 1964. Par la suite et jusqu'à maintenant, il a enseigné aux universités d'Edmonton et Laval où il a poursuivi l'oeuvre de sa vie: la différenciation et l'explication des niveaux du développement cognitif, émotif et instinctif humain. Cette longue quête psycho-anthropologique l'a amené à rejeter la thérapie freudienne: elle-même valorise, à son dire, les personnalités antrophées et partant, refoule l'instinct de perfectionnement.

---

Dabrowski a publié en plusieurs langues une trentaine d'ouvrages et une cinquantaine d'articles. A date, sa "théorie de la désintégration positive" a suscité trois conférences internationales.
